Keep Your Ford from Steaming

WHEN your radiator steams it means that your water is low or your radiator is dirty. Hard water deposits lime in the radiator tubes. That reduces their area and cuts down radiation so the water circulates without getting cool. The result is an over-heated engine and reduced efficiency; greater gas consumption and rapid depreciation. The remedy is simple and cheap: Use Giant Lye and your problem is solved.

DIRECTIONS: Dissolve 2 to 4 tablespoonfuls of Glant Lye in enough water to fill the radiator. Leave in the car during a day's run. Drain and refill with clean water. Repeat once a month.
